

Atuhurire Aisha

Essay: Corona Virus has changed my life so much.

This essay is written by Atuhurire Aisha who is a bursar at Lugumba preparatory school Mpigi.

While the cat is away, the mice will play. If people had no ball in their court, the virus would have killed many of us.

According to my understanding, this change brought by corona virus is said to be an unplanned change when a major sudden surprise takes place, in a place that causes it's members to respond in a highly reactive and disorganized fashion.

Normally I would be at school expanding my experience but due to the occurring situation of corona, my work school and many others have been locked down. I am now at home everyday and it really is affecting me so erally. I am not used to digging but corona virus lockdown has taught that we have to accept and recognise that change is needed. Not even able to speak to close relatives and friends and I see that on a regular basis it is hard to me.

We say, health is better than wealth. Kids need to be outside and with people to release their energy and interact with people. But this cannot happen now. One thing we see happening is food insecurity and social distancing.

People are very much afraid and cautious because of food supple and interracting with fellows. They are also afraid and told to stay inside, so we stocked food and home supplies to last for atleast two weeks. Luckily for us we still had food and home supplies to buy. But there are also desperate people in need of food and home supplies yet they cannot get without being financially unstable.

Being financially unstable affected my development plans due to corona virus. But I know that is had affected other people around Mpigi District.

With Social distancing it hit me that corona virus will not blow over. When I tried to travel to Bombo town, sitting in a taxi, I saw different people wearing red, blue, green masks, had gloves to protect themselves and separated in a taxi.

Usually people would be socializing when they separate others but now every one wanted to protect themselves. It is a global pandemic that is sweeping through the nation and bringing havoc everywhere it goes.

Once, I had my father we were in the line at a certain shop. There were two men and a lady discussing how many jobs were cut and how the government was setting a curfew. I overheard the discussion then claimed in a jokke to my father " A break". After a few minutes we hang up from the line.

I am an introvert but used am used to a little social instructions. But now this is not the option and I feel isolated from the real world. Waking up and doing the same thing over and over in my home is boring. This has hit me so much that corona virus will not blow over and has discouraged my hopes for reopening of schools.

But this means that I play a part in the ending of corona virus 19. I will do what I can. I try not to worry much when thinking of corona virus. I know while the cat is away, the mice will play, patience pays but it pains.

I had a fear about my father whose job continued but after knowing that he works and deals with a lot of people, I know there is a fair chance he can come in contact with corona virus. And I also chase away the fear because I know he is taking precautions to prevent germs. When my father goes to work he makes sure he disinfects his whole work place. He also brings a personal hand sanitizer with him to clean his hands and I as well in my home.

Essay: Corona Virus has changed my life so much.

This essay is written by Atuhurire Aisha who is a bursar at Lujumba preparatory school Mpigi.

While the cat is away, the mice will play. If people had no ball in their court, the virus would have killed many of us.

According to my understanding, this change brought about by corona virus is said to be an un planned change which happens when a major ^{sudden} surprise takes place in a certain place that causes it's members to ~~react~~ ^{respond} in a highly reactive and disorganised fashion.

Normally, I would be at school expanding my experience but due to the occurring situation of corona, my work school and many others have been locked down.

I am now at home everyday and it really is affecting me so erally.

I am not used to digging but corona virus lock down has taught me that we have to accept and recognise that change is needed.

Not even able to speak to close relatives and friends and I see that on a regular basis it is hard to me.

We say, health is better than wealth, kids need to be outside and with people to release their energy and interact with people.

But this cannot happen now. One thing we see happening is food insecurity and social distancing.

People are very much afraid and cautious because of food supply and interacting with fellows. They are also afraid and told to stay inside, so we stocked food and home supplies to last for atleast two weeks.

Luckily, for us we still had food and home supplies to buy. But there are also disperate people in need of food and ~~home supplies~~ yet they cannot get without being financially unstable.

Being financially un stable, affected my developmental plans due to coronm virus 19. But I know that it has affected other people around Mpigi District

With social distancing, it hit me that corona virus will not blow over. when i tried to travel to Bombo town, sitting in a taxi, i so different people wearing red, blue, green masks, hand gloves to protect themselves and separating in a taxi.

Usually, people would be socializing when they separate others but now every one wanted to protect themselves.

It is a global pandemic that is sweeping through the nation and bringing havoc every where it goes.

Once, i had my father we were in the line at a certain shop, there were two men and a lady discussing how many jobs were cut and how the government was setting a carfew i over heard the discussion then claimed in a joke to my father "A break" After a few minutes, we hang up from the line.

I am an introvert but am used to a little social interactions.

But now this is not the option and i feel isolated from the real world.

Waking up and doing the same thing over and over in my home is boring.

This has hit me th so much that corona virus will not blow over and has discouraged my hopes for reopening of schools.

But this means that i play a part in the ending of corona virus 19. i will do what i can. i try not to worry much when thinking of corona virus b i know while the cat is away, the mice will play - patience pays but it pains.

I had a fear about my father whose job continued but after knowing that he works and deals with alot of people, he ~~can~~ i know there is a fair chance he can come in contact with corona virus. And i also chase away the fear because i know he is taking precautions to prevent germs. When my father goes to work, he makes sure he disinfects his whole work place. He also brings a personal hand sanitizer with him clean his hands and i as well in my home.